"You shall be holy" (Vayikra 19:2).	קדשִׁים תִּהְיוּ (י״ט, ג׳.
Rashi explains: "Be separated from illicit relations and from sin."	וּפֵירֵשׁ רַשִּ"י: הָוּוּ פְּרוּשִׁים מָן הָעָרָיוֹת וּמָן הָעֲבֵירָה.
And the Ramban interprets: to sanctify oneself even in that which is permitted to him.	וָהָרַמְבַּ"ן פֵּירֵשׁ לְקַדֵּשׁ עַצְמוֹ בַּמֻּתָּר לוֹ.
And both are necessary:	וְצָרִיךְ לִהְיוֹת שְׁנֵיהֶם,
A prohibited thing must be extremely severe—	דָבָר אָסוּר יִהְיֶה חָמוּר מְאֹד מְאֹד,
even something prohibited by the Sages, for they strengthened their words, etc. (Eiruvin 73a).	אָפִילוּ דָּבֶר דְּרַבָּנָן דְּעָשׂוּ חִיזּוּק לִדְבָרֵיהֶם וְכוּ' (עֵירוּבִין ע"ז, א'.
And that which is permitted—i.e., personal traits and behaviors—is not as severe.	ָןדָבָר הַמֻּתָּר, דְּהַיְינוּ מִדּוֹת, אֵינוֹ חָמוּר כָּל כָּדְ,
The proof is that the Rav, of blessed memory, said that for character traits, the essence of Yom Kippur atones.	וְהָרְאָיָה שֶׁאָמֵר הָרַב ז"ל דְּעַל מִדּוֹת עֲצוּמוֹ שֶׁל יוֹם הַכִּפּוּרִים מְכַפֵּר,
Nonetheless, one must still treat them with great severity.	מָכָּל מָקוֹם צָרִידְּ לְהַחֲזִיק אוֹתָם חָמוּר מְאֹד.

[NOTE: Summary

This brief but powerful teaching highlights two levels of holiness:

- 1. Avoiding the prohibited (as Rashi explains, primarily sexual immorality and sin),
- 2. Sanctifying oneself even in permitted matters (as Ramban explains—developing self-discipline even in morally neutral areas).

Both aspects are essential:

- What is forbidden must be treated with extreme seriousness—even rabbinic prohibitions, as Chazal strengthened their words (cf. Eiruvin 73a).
- What is permitted, especially personal traits and behaviors, while not as categorically severe, still demand attention and refinement. The fact that Yom Kippur atones for bad traits (whereas other sins may require teshuvah and more) underscores their spiritual importance.

Practical Takeaway

Holiness doesn't stop at avoiding sin. One must also strive for self-discipline and sanctity even in the permissible: how we eat, speak, behave, and interact. Even if something is "allowed," that doesn't mean it's spiritually elevating. True kedushah means cultivating awareness and restraint in every aspect of life. END NOTE

"Do not steal, and do not deny" (Vayikra 19:11).	לא תּגְנֹבוּ וְלֹא תְכַחֲשׁוּ (וַיִּקְרָא י״ט, י״א.
One who does not lie—nothing is stolen from him at all.	מִי שָׁאֵינוֹ מְשַׁקֵּר, אֵין נִגְנָב מִמֶּנוּ שׁוּם דָּבָר כְּלָל.
And this is [the meaning of] "Do not steal and do not deny."	ָוְזָהוּ לֹא תִּגְנֹבוּ וְלֹא תְּכַחֲשׁוּ.
And the aspect of "loss" [i.e., something lost] comes from a blemish in thought,	וּבְחִינַת אֲבֵידָה הִיא מִחֲמַת פָּגַם בַּמַּחֲשָׁבָה
or because some holy sparks fall away from the person,	אוֹ מִחֲמֵת שָׁנּוֹפָלִים מִן הָאָדָם אֵיזֶה נִיצוֹצוֹת קְדוּשָׁה,
and therefore some object is also lost from him.	וְלָכֵן נָאֱבֵד מִמֶּנוּ אֵיזָה דָּבָר גַּם כֵּן.
And for this reason, it is forbidden to return a lost item to a non-Jew (Sanhedrin 76b),	ן עַל כֵּן אָסוּר לְהַחֲזִיר אֲבֵידָה לְגוֹי (סַנְהָדְרִין ע"ו, ב'), for when the spark has fallen away from him, it is not to be returned. Understand this.	פִי כְּשֶׁנָפַל הַנִּיצוֹץ מִמֶּנוּ אֵין לְהַחֲזִירוֹ, וְהָבֵן. פִּי כְּשֶׁנָפַל הַנִּיצוֹץ מִמֶּנוּ אֵין לְהַחֲזִירוֹ, וְהָבֵן.

[NOTE: Summary

The verse "Do not steal and do not deny" (Vayikra 19:11) is interpreted here on a deeper, spiritual level. It teaches that one who avoids falsehood entirely will not suffer theft or loss—because truthfulness aligns a person with Divine order. Furthermore, when a person experiences a loss, it may stem from a blemish in thought or the falling away of holy sparks from his soul. These sparks, when lost, manifest in the physical world as lost objects. For this reason, returning a lost item to a non-Jew is prohibited (Sanhedrin 76b), as the fallen spark is no longer theirs to reclaim.

Practical Takeaway

Live with integrity not only in speech but in thought. Honesty creates spiritual protection, while distorted thinking and dishonesty cause inner and outer loss. Even minor untruths can open a path to spiritual and material depletion. Strive to uphold truth in all areas—and trust that this draws Divine blessing and preservation. END NOTE

"Do not withhold the wages of a hired worker with you until morning" (Vayikra 19:13).	לא תָלִין כְּעֻלַּת שָׂכִיר אִתְּךְּ עַד בֹּקֶר (י״ט, י״ג.
The reason is explained in the Zohar (Zohar III 103b):	פֵירֵשׁ הַטַעַם בַּוּהַר (ק"ג ע"ב:
Because everything a person does during the day—all the speech and movements—	כִּי כָּל מַה שֶּׁאָדָם עוֹשֶׂה בִּיּוֹם וְכָל הַדְּבּוּרִים וְהַתְּנוּעוֹת
ascends at night to become feminine waters (mayin nukvin).	עוֹלֶה בַלַּיְלָה לְמַיִן נוּקְבִּין.
Therefore, "do not let [the wages] remain overnight," etc. See there in the Zohar.	לָכֵן לֹא תָלִין כו', עַיֵּן שֶׁם בַּזֹהַר.
And all the requests a person makes during the day also ascend at night,	וְכָל הַבַּקָשׁוֹת שֶׁאָדָם מְבַקֵשׁ בַּיוֹם כַּלָּם יֵשׁ לָהָם עֲלִיָּה בַלַּיְלָה
and there they are sweetened and the request is fulfilled.	וְשֶׁם נִמְתָּק וְנַעֲשֶׂה מְבוּקְשׁוֹ.
Therefore, we pray on Yom Kippur (in the Yaaleh Techinuneinu piyut of Maariv ):	לֶכֵן מָתְפַּלְּיִם בְּיוֹם הַכִּפּוּרִים (פִּיוּט "יַעֲלֶה תְּחָנוּנֵינוּ" [[[מַעֲרִיב:
"May our supplication rise in the evening and our outcry come in the morning,"	"יַעַלֶּה תַחֲנוּנִינוּ מֵעֶרֶב וְיָבוֹא שַׁוְעָתֵנוּ מִבּּקֶר", in the secret of "new every morning" (Eichah 3:23), and see there also "until evening."	בְּסוֹד "חֲדָשִׁים לַבְּקָרִים" (אֵיכָה ג', כ"ג), וְיִרְאֶה עוֹד עַד עֶרֶב.

[NOTE: Summary

The mitzvah "Do not withhold the wages of a hired worker until morning" (Vayikra 19:13) is given a mystical explanation in the Zohar (Vol. III 103b). Every action, word, and movement a person performs during the day rises at night as mayin nukvin—a spiritual process by which human effort initiates divine response. Likewise, all prayers and requests made during the day ascend at night and are sweetened and fulfilled above. This process is echoed in the Yom Kippur prayer "Yaaleh Techinuneinu", which pleads for the prayers of evening to ascend and the cries of morning to be received, based on the verse "They are new every morning" (Eichah 3:23).

Practical Takeaway

One's daily actions and words matter far beyond the moment—they ascend spiritually and shape divine response. Be mindful in your deeds and speech during the day, knowing that nighttime is a time of spiritual processing and refinement. Pay your workers on time—not only as a legal duty, but as an alignment with cosmic order where delays create blockages both below and above. Holiness means timeliness and trust. END NOTE

Imrie Pinchas Parshas Kedoshim

Rabbi Akiva said: This is a great principle in the Torah (Sifra Kedoshim 4:12).	אָמֵר רַבִּי עֲקִיבָא: זֶה כְּלַל גָּדוֹל בַּתּוֹרָה (סִפְרָא קְדֹשִׁים (פ״ד, י״ב.
From Rabbi Palik ז"ל in the name of Rabbi Fradel ז"ל the elder:	מֵרַבִּי פָאלִיק זַ"ל בְּשֵׁם רַבִּי פְרֵידֵל זַ"ל קַמָּא,
In a person are all ten sefiros.	בָּאָדָם יֵשׁ כָּל הַי״ד סְפִּירוֹת.
And regarding the first three, there is no grasping of them, etc.,	וְהָבֵּה בְּג' רָאשׁוֹנוֹת אֵין בָּהֶן תְּפִיסָה כו'.
But the seven middos are known—	אֲבָל הַז' מִדּוֹת יְדוּעוֹת, namely: chesed (love), gevurah (awe), tiferes, etc.	יְהַיִינוּ חֶסֶד אַהֲבָה גְּבוּרָה יִרְאָה תִּפְאֶרֶת וְכוּ'.
And with these seven middos , a person can serve Hashem—	וּבְאֵלוּ הַז' מִדּוֹת יָכוֹל אָדָם לְהִשְׁתַּמֵשׁ לַעֲבוֹדַת הַשֵּׁי"ת, with love and awe of Him, etc.	יְלְאַהַבָּה וּלְיִרְאָה אוֹתוֹ וְכוּ'.
And likewise, G-d forbid, a person can use them in the opposite direction.	ּוְכֵן חַס וְשָׁלוֹם יָכוֹל לִפְעוֹל בְּהֶפֶּךְ
And whenever a person uses one middah on one side, automatically the opposing side is diminished.	ָןכָל מָה שֶׁאָדָם מִשְׁתַּמֵשׁ בְּאֶחָד מֵהַמִּדוֹת לְצֵד אָחָד, מִמֵילָא מִתְמַצֵט הַצַּד שֶׁבְּנָגְדּוֹ.
And similarly, when he does not use the opposing side, and uses one side, the other increases—	ְרָכֵן כְּשֶׁאֵינוֹ הַצַּד שֶׁכְּנֶגְדּוֹ, וְכֵן מִשְׁתַּמֵּשׁ לְצַד אֶחָד נְתְרַבֶּה הַצַּד הַבֵּית,
for this capacity of the middah , in any case, exists in a person.	כִּי זֶה הַכֹּחַ שֶׁל הַמִּדָּה עַכּ"פ יֵשְׁנָה בָּאָדָם.
For example, when a person does not love materiality and this world,	דֶּרֶךְ מָשֶׁלֹ, כְּשֶׁאָדָם אֵינוֹ אוֹהֵב גַּשְׁמִיּוּת וְעוֹלָם הַזֶּה,
and he does not express the middah of love on these things—	ןאֵינוֹ מוֹצִיא מִדּוֹת אַהָּבָה עַל זֶה—
it becomes easier for him to use the middah of love to love Hashem and the Torah.	נוֹחַ לוֹ לְהַשְׁתַּמֵשׁ בְּמִדַּת אַהְבָה שֶׁיֵשׁ בּוֹ לֶאֱהֹב אֶת הַשֵּׁי"ת וְאֶת הַתּוֹרָה.
And likewise in the reverse, etc. Understand this.	וְכֵן בְּהֶפֶּךְ וְכוּ', וְהָבֵן.
And according to this, Rav Raphael ז"ל explained the verse "And you shall love your fellow as yourself," which Rabbi Akiva called a great principle in the Torah.	וְעַל פִּי זֶה בֵּיאֵר הוּא [מוֹהַר"ר רְפָאֵל] זַ"ל "וְאָהַרְהָּ לָרַעֲךְּ כָּמוֹדְּ", אָמֵר רַבִּי עֲקִיבָא זֶה כְּלֵל גָּדוֹל בַּתּוֹרָה.
The Shelah (Shnei Luchos HaBris, Lish Sha'ar HaOsyos §3) asks: this fits between man and his fellow, but how does it apply between man and G-d?	ְוָהְקְשָׁה שֶׁלָה (שְׁנֵי לוּחוֹת הַבְּרִית, שַׁעַר עַל סוּלָם לִיס לוּס גי): תֵּינַח שֶׁבֵּין אָדָם לַחְבֵרוֹ, אֲבָל בֵּין אָדָם לַמָּקוֹם מַהִי אִיכָּא לְמֵימֵר? עַיֵּ"שׁ.
And at first, he explained simply: when a person loves all of Israel, the Divine Presence dwells upon him.	וּבִתְחִילָה אָמַר הוּא זַ"ל שֶׁיֵשׁ לוֹמַר עַל דֶּרֶךְ פְּשָׁט: כִּי הָאָדָם הָאוֹהֵב כָּל יִשְׂרָאֵל שׁוֹרֶה עָלָיו הַשְׁכִינָה.

Imrie Pinchas Parshas Kedoshim

And through this, all workers of iniquity are scattered, and it is	ןעַל יְדֵי זֶה יִתְפָּרְדוּ כָּל פּוֹעֲלֵי אָוֶן וְנֹחַ לוֹ לָבוֹא לְקַיֵּם כָּל
easier for him to fulfill the entire Torah.	הַתּוֹרָה.
And afterward he explained it according to the above from Rabbi Fradel:	ןְאַחַר כָּךְ בֵּיאֵר עַל דֶּרֶךְ הַנַּ"ל מֵרַבִּי פְרֵידֵל:
That by not being strict with his fellow, and receiving everything with a pleasant face,	כִּי עַל יְדֵי שֶׁאֵינוֹ מַקְפִּיד עַל חֲבֵרוֹ רַק מְקַבֵּל הַכּּל בְּסַבֶּר בָּנִים יָפוֹת,
and his heart is not anxious or strict about anything—	וְאֵין לִבּוֹ חָרֵד וּמַקְפִּיד עַל שׁוּם דָּבָר—
for in any case, one cannot fulfill "Love your fellow as yourself" unless he removes from himself the middah of strictness ( ka'peida ), which belongs to gevurah —	ָכִי בָּלֹא הַכֵּי גַם אִי אֶפְשָׁר לְקַיֵּים "וְאָהַבְתָּ לְרֵעֲדּ כָּמוֹדּ", אָם לֹא יָסוּר מִמֶּנוּ מִדַּת הַקְּפֵדָה, שֶׁהִיא מִמִּדַּת הַגְּבוּרָה.
And by not using the middah of gevurah for matters of this world,	וְעַל יְדֵי שֶׁאֵינוֹ מִשְׁתַּמֵּשׁ בְּמִדַּת גְּבוּרָה לִדְבָרֵי עוֹלָם הַזֶּה,
he can use that same inner capacity to be fearful and reverent of the word of Hashem.	נוֹחַ לוֹ בְּכֹחַ זוֹ הַמִּדָּה לְהְיוֹת יָרֵא וְחָרֵד עַל דִּבְרֵי הַשֵּׁי"ת.
And this is a great principle in the Torah.	וְזֶהוּ כְּלֵל גָּדוֹל בַּתּוֹרָה.

NOTE: Summary

The verse "אָהַבְּתָּ לְרֵעֶךּ כָּמוֹךְ" is elevated by Rabbi Akiva as a foundational principle of the Torah. Building on this, a teaching from Rabbi Fradel (as conveyed by Rabbi Palik and later expounded by Rav Raphael) explains that every person possesses the ten sefiros, especially the seven emotional middos (attributes), such as love, awe, and compassion. These can be directed either toward holiness or, God forbid, the opposite. When a person chooses not to use a negative middah (like severity or obsession with materialism), that same middah becomes available for positive spiritual use, such as love for Hashem or awe of His word. Hence, refraining from strictness and harshness toward others frees up the emotional capacity to fear Heaven and live with spiritual passion. This, they explain, is how the mitzvah of loving one's fellow serves not only interpersonal ethics but also deepens our relationship with Hashem.

Practical Takeaway

If you stop using your emotions negatively, you'll unlock them for holiness. For example, if you withhold harsh judgment from others, you'll be more capable of applying inner intensity toward reverence and love of Hashem. Treat others kindly, overlook faults, and release emotional fixations—and you'll discover new depths in your own Divine service. Let love overflow toward others, and it will return to uplift your soul.

Chassidic Story

Reb Pinchas of Koretz, one of the closest disciples of the Baal Shem Tov, was known for his deep pursuit of truth and refinement of middos. He lived this teaching—that one must withdraw negative emotions from worldly matters in order to harness them for Divine service.

One time, a close disciple came to Reb Pinchas and shared how he had been wronged by a fellow townsman and could not stop feeling angry. The Rebbe looked at him with a soft but serious gaze and said:

"Tell me, do you ever cry during your prayers?"

"Not often," the disciple admitted.

"Then why do you waste your tears on another man's faults?" Reb Pinchas asked.

"If your heart knows how to tremble in indignation, it can also tremble in awe of Heaven. But not both at once."

The disciple understood: the emotional power he was using to be upset could be reclaimed and redirected toward awe, love, and holiness—just as Reb Pinchas taught in his explanation of יראת שמים as a gateway to יראת שמים.

This story is drawn from Imrei Pinchas HaShalem and cited in the historical biographical work "Reb Pinchas MiKoretz" by Menachem Brayer, who compiled oral traditions and manuscript material preserved in Chassidic circles. It reflects Reb Pinchas's central doctrine: true spiritual life requires emotional discipline, and love for others unlocks love for G-d. END NOTE (Yevamos 63b).	(וְזֶהוּ: קָשֶׁה עוֹנְשָׁן שֶׁל מִדּוֹת (יְבָמוֹת ס"ג, ב׳.

NOTE: Summary

The verse "הֵין צֶּדֶק" ("a just hin") is interpreted beyond its simple monetary meaning. Chazal (Kiddushin 49a) explain that a person's "yes" and "no" must be truthful and reliable—a standard of integrity in all speech. This teaching is expanded to mean that one must weigh each word carefully, using the intellect to decide whether it is worth saying. This connects to interpersonal conduct: a person must cultivate good middos (character traits), because Yom Kippur cannot atone for sins between man and his fellow (Yoma 85b). Therefore, a careless word or unkindness cannot be dismissed lightly. The Talmud (Yevamos 63b) adds: "The punishment for negative middos is harsh," underscoring how deeply character affects one's spiritual fate.

Practical Takeaway

Think before you speak. Every word has weight—not just in Heaven, but in your relationships and character. A true Jew doesn't just say "yes" or "no"—he means it, lives it, and owns it. Cultivate honesty, restraint, and kindness in speech and action. Examine how you speak to others: are your promises reliable? Are your words uplifting or hurtful? Refine your middos, for refined character is the foundation of all Torah.

Chassidic Story (Reb Pinchas of Koretz)

Reb Pinchas of Koretz was renowned for his extreme devotion to truth and purity of speech. One day, a merchant came to the Rebbe, boasting how he had cleverly negotiated a deal, bending the truth slightly to earn a larger profit. Reb Pinchas turned to him and said:

"You think your words are clever—but each one is a theft. Not of money, but of your own soul's integrity. You cannot love Hashem with a crooked tongue."

Reb Pinchas was known to pause for long periods before speaking, even in casual conversation. When asked why, he replied:

"The tongue has no bones—but it breaks more than any limb. I weigh every word to ensure it carries only truth."

His disciples recount that he would say:

"Better to be silent in truth than speak in false kindness."
